Mysterious Murder of a Pretty Girl on Long Island.

Her Body Concealed in a Thicket by the Assassin.

Finger-Marks on Her Throat Tell the Story.

Hundreds Have Looked Upon the Victim, but None Could

Identify Her. A murder rivalling in mystery the celebrated Rahway case has been unearthed near persons there talking in whispers of the Ridgewood, and the discovery has created a tragedy. All of these persons looked upon

THE MURDERED GIRL.

Her body was then carried into a thicket hear Fresh Pond, L. I., where it was yesterwood. That the death struggle did not take place at or near the spot where the victim was found is evidenced by the absence of any The identity of the victim has not yet been ascertained, although hundreds of persons have called at the Ridgewood Morgue since daybreak this morning to look at the body. The Eidewood Morgue is a little 8x12 buildng on Wyckoff avenue, and it is the Mecca o-day of curious hundreds. Among the callers were three men whose scullar conduct attracted attention. Their names could not be ascertained, but the morgue-keeper has a fairly accurate decription of them and will give it to oroner Homeyer, who has charge of the case. These three men called to-gether, looked at the body, conversed or a few moments in whispers and then hurdiviers the Morgue. They separated when a short distance from the building and went in different directions, each seemingly anxous to escape observation. rober Homeyer had left fire Morgue for

GUTTENBURG'S EXPECTATIONS

The Hill Track Should Have Successful Summer Meeting.

The Longstreet-Tenny match was decided at Morris Park on Saturday afternoon, and the swaybacked colt was disgracefully beaten. Longatreet took the lead at the start and was never headed, winning in the com-monest of canters by half a dozen lengths. From any point of view that may be taken the result was certainly not satisfactory. Tenny could not have been at his test here does not live the horse that can beat the Rayon d'or colt in a canter when Tenns one thing, however; that is, that Longstreet sent the Longfellow horse on again, and he stayed in front to the end. The writer was sweet on Tenny's chances the whole of his career have been better than question. It looked like bragging on the part best horse I ever owned. He is better than Luke Blackburn or Hindoo, and they were great racchorses." He is quite correct, however, and Tenny's supporters are mourning that his conclusions were so painfully ac-Mr. Pulsifer was not satisfied with the race passing through his lat.

Anderson's story of the encounter is that he returned from the city at 2 o'clock Saturday, and passed the afternoon at home. in moments?

"Yes," replied Mr. Raken, "upon matters of business."

Anderson says he told Baker it was no use to make such threats as he had before induced in. White taking calmy Mrs. Baker approached and as she joined in the conversation, Anderson said he couldn't take to two or them at alone.

This Mrs. Baker called out: "That man insuled me. He laughed this "That man insuled me. He laughed this ha" at me this morning as he passed through the hall."

Anderson says he had done something of the morning as he passed through the hall."

Anderson says he had done something of the done so in an insulting way. But Baker was incensed and followed his words, "You insult this hip packet.

Anderson says he divined Baker's purpose and fell back two or three steps. Then, he says, as Baker advanced, drawing his revolver, he also drew.

When Mrs. Baker jumped between them, clinging to and shielding hear husband, Anderson says he divined a days in the first lim practically stranded financially. For this is fair and gives owners who have been in mard luck a chance. Many an ewner would pay his forfeits but for a streak of bad luck when Mrs. Baker jumped between them, clinging to and shielding hear husband, Anderson says he appears to be a supplementation of the bag tracks, it is an bad as imprisoning a man for debt. An easy and just way to settle this matter would be to allow owners and trainers to race at the big tracks, and if they will nurse let those purpose.
